

To help citizens and journalists navigate the 2020 election in America, the Pew Research Center will be creating an interactive, online tool informed by original research and analysis that will provide extensive data on where Americans get their news, who and what they trust to deliver the facts and how this aligns with what Americans think and believe about the 2020 campaign. The tool will allow people to directly compare their knowledge, beliefs and opinions with those of fellow citizens, and allow journalists to use the tool for reporting that goes beyond the typical use of public opinion data. The tool will launch publicly in January 2020 with regularly updated data and analysis throughout the election season.

We are seeking to fill several positions to work through the end of 2020 in support of this project. This is an exciting opportunity to do nonpartisan, fact-based, impactful work. The positions we are hiring include:

Senior Researcher

Survey Research Methodologist

User Experience Specialist

- Interest in public opinion and polling required.
- A “numbers person” with strong quantitative and statistical skills.
- Detail oriented with exacting standards to maintain accuracy and impartiality in all work products.
- Strong verbal and written communications skills.
- Ability to work well in a team setting.
- Ability to balance numerous tasks simultaneously and meet tight deadlines.
